

Clarksborg's Leading Shopping Center
Parsons-Souders Store News

Store Closes 6 p. m.

Wednesday, Oct. 26th

Get Your New Suit During This Re-adjustment Sale and Save a Fourth

$28.75, $32.50, $35 and $40 Suits for $25

The best opportunity to get your New Fall Suits is right now—we're re-adjusting our suit prices, all broken sizes, sample models, from the 28.75 to the $40 lines take a drop to Twenty-five Dollars.

Start off this Monday morning with fifty-four Suits—45 of them are "Parsons-Souders System" which means HIGHEST ART in tailoring, fit and finish.

Every suit strictly new, designed and bought this season; the cloths are very latest, mostly browns, blues, blacks and dark mixtures. All sizes 32 to 44 in collected assortment affording splendid chance to be suited.

PARSONS-SOUDERS

Sale Extra! Maker's Sample Lines of Baskets At Wholesale Prices

Another Basket Sale! Twice yearly, Spring and Fall; we get the makers samples, fractionally low and sell them at Wholesale Prices, and they sell, don't you forget it.

Lest ye forget, better come early, say tomorrow, while the assortment of styles is still large, making choosing easy.

There's about 300 Baskets—samples of the drummer's lines—no two alike, every kind you can think of—now

10c to $2.00 each, worth 15c to 3.50 a basket

PARSONS-SOUDERS CO.

$8 to $15 Finest Ostrich Plumes Tale End of Sale, at $5.75

Just twenty pieces—Fine Ostrich Plumes; most beautiful Willows, Aigrettes, etc., left from the great sample sale ending Saturday. This lot collected and table display—with choice at $5.75.

224-226 Main Street

SOCIAL

Elk's Annual Banquet

Two hundred of the best people on earth assembled in the dining room of the Walden hotel at 10 o'clock last night as members of the Clarksborg lodge of Elks, the occasion being the annual banquet of the lodge, and two and a half hours were spent in eating, after which an intellectual feast was enjoyed.

Under the direction of R. J. Galey, genial host, and the banquet committee, of which Charles M. Gaylord was chairman, an elaborate menu as shown elsewhere had been prepared, and the dining room decorated with autumn flowers and Halloween reminders, presented superb in elegance and beauty. Large chrysanthemums adorned the many tables and the favors were novel, consisting of miniature shoes. The menu was as follows:

Celery Olives Radishes
 Strained Chicken Gumbo in Cups
 Lobster Cutlets, Sauce Poivrot
 Potatoes Julienne
 Fillet Mignon, Bernalise
 String Beans Potatoes Rissoles
 Piece Montee
 Asparagus Tips, Vinaigrette
 Fancy Ice Cream Cake
 Swiss Cheese Crackers
 Demi Tasse

Cigars Cigarettes
 Mr. Charles M. Hart gracefully presided as toastmaster and the following program was carried out in a pleasing manner:

"Our Absent Brothers"—Thomas Ramage.

Vocal solo—George W. Stage.

"Elkology"—George E. White.

Vocal solo—Fleming Holden.

"Fidelity"—Osman E. Swartz.

Vocal solo—George W. Stage.

"Our New Home"—George L. Duncan.

Selection—Orchestra.

"Our District Deputy"—Lucius Hoge, Jr.

The Cadenza orchestra provided music for the occasion, rendering the following program under the leadership of Emile Rasplaire:

"Japanola" March, Brother Cliff Seiden.

Matinee Idol Selection, Silvie Hein.

What's the Matter With Father, Williams & Venestine.

Three Twins Selection, Karl Karl Keshna.

Casey Jones, Eddie Newton.

I Won't Be Back Till August, Jerome Remick.

Preceding the banquet a regular meeting of the lodge was held and a class of nine initiated, namely, Chester F. Simeral, city; W. H. Fenwick, Fenwick; Ralph A. Gawthrop, Wolf Summit; James I. McCormick, Lumberton; W. B. Snyder and C. W. Strickling, West Union; and John Johnson, Ira Williams and T. Z. Pride, Salem.

Surprise Party.

Mrs. M. H. Rockwell, of Wilsonburg, was happily surprised Tuesday evening, it being her forty-ninth birthday, by the gathering of neighbors and friends, including her Sunday school class. The evening was spent in games and music. Refreshments were served. Many nice gifts were received and all expressed themselves as having enjoyed the evening.

Those present were Mrs. Nelson Johnson, Mrs. John Strother and niece, Miss Sturm; Mrs. Hardmon and daughter Nettie, Misses Margaret, Jennie and Mary Flynn, Misses Florence and Mildred Johnson, Georgia Golden, Myrtle Leaf, Jeanette Rockwell and Mary Plant, and Earl Morrison, Arthur Lanham, James Plant, Waltman Strother Bernard and ari Johnson, Earl and Lester Swiger, Okey, Theodore and Daniel Johnson and Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Haggerty.

A Home Wedding.

A pretty home wedding was solemnized today at noon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. Clay Bartlett at Stealey Heights, when the Rev. B. D. Steale joined in marriage Miss Fannie Elizabeth Bartlett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bartlett, and Mr. Lafayette Wiles, of Petroleum. The ceremony was a quiet one, only a few relatives and friends being present.

The bride wore a blue traveling suit, with hat to match, and was unattended. After the ceremony the couple went on a honeymoon tour in northern Pennsylvania, and will take up housekeeping at Petroleum on their return.

The bride is a popular young lady, and until recently was employed by the Watts-Lambert Company. The bridegroom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Wiles. Their many friends wish them much success.

(Continued on page 8.)

SEWING—
 Ladies' Tailor-made Waists
 a Specialty.
 MODERATE PRICES
 (Miss) LILLIAN H. GORDON,
 732 Dule Ave.

PARSONS-SOUDERS CO.

THE WOMAN'S STORE

"Furnishers to Women Who Know."

Women Are Unstinted in Their Praise of Our New Fall Styles

Have You Seen Them

If not we anticipate a very pleasant occasion with you in our suit section. It will be a pleasure for us to show you these splendid garments. Any merchant might be proud to include such suits in his stock.

They are as near perfection as human skill can produce. They are correctly cut and carefully tailored. They are productions of manufacturers who have long catered to a discriminating trade. They are made in light, sanitary workrooms by labor of an intelligent class. That is the explanation of their superior quality. Our system of selling on small margins is the explanation of the moderate prices. Only at this store can you buy garments so excellent for prices so reasonable.

The suits are mostly of the rough materials which fashion so strongly favors at present. Darker, richer colorings than have been in vogue for the past few seasons prevail. In the elaborate garments tasteful trimmings of braids, buttons and oriental bandings make their appearance.

Women with a sense of beauty and value instinctively choose such suits as these.

Plain Serge Suits

A popular suit at a popular price. A suit entirely devoid of trimming, but strictly maintained—neat, stylish pockets, special satin lined jacket—plain gored skirt with cluster pleats at front and back.

$15.00

A new style Child's Coat—an especially warm coat, sizes 6 to 12 years. $4.75

Black Kersey Top Coats

You have paid $15.00 for such a coat—plain notched collar, velvet trimmed, large buttons, turned back cuff and convenient pockets. A coat to keep you warm in the coldest weather. Complete size range.

$10.00

Fancy Serge Suits

A few left of those $15.00 Suits that were on sale last week, (19 out of the original 50), all different styles.

$15.00

Fur Auto Coats

$50.00 fur coats—black and brown—52 inches long, full satin lined, Chambray lined pockets. See window display.

$35.00

THE IRWIN-LOCKWOOD COMPANY

Next Door to New Goff Building

PLAYS AND PLAYERS

In "The Traveling Salesman," which will play a return engagement Thursday night at the Grand, James Forbes has gotten very close to the hearts of the common people with his breezy story of a drummer "on the road" just as he did with "The Road" and "The Chorus Lady," and as he has said to have done with his latest effort, "The Commuters," which opened at the Criterion theatre in New York in August. He seems to have a faculty of delving into the incidents of every day life and extracting therefrom a great deal of comedy. It is true that there is comedy in every day life, but few of us see it in the hustle and bustle between breakfast and bed-time, but when you may recline in an orchestra chair and have the comedy sifted out for you and placed in the capable hands of Mark Smith, Dallas Tyler, Doan Borup and the remainder of Mr. Harris's excellent cast, you are wont to remark to your seat-mate: "I knew a fellow just like that at home when I was a kid." "The Traveling Salesman" is now in its third season.

What will probably be a most diverting comedy will be "The Lottery Man," the three act comedy of Rida Johnson Young, which ran for eight months at the Bijou theatre, New York. Under the direction of the Shuberts, the play will be presented at the Grand Friday night. The title comes from a situation in the play. Jack Wright is a reporter on a metropolitan paper. He gets a tip on Wall street and borrows money from "Foxy" Peyton, proprietor of the paper, promising that if his tip fails, he will make good by giving the paper one of the "scoops" it has ever had. He loses the money and the idea of the "scoop" is to conduct a lottery, the chief prize of which is a young husband, he himself to be the winner. There is a sweetheart in the cast, and an old maid who wins the lottery number. The question is—whether the tip on Wall street and borrows money from "Foxy" Peyton, proprietor of the paper, promising that if his tip fails, he will make good by giving the paper one of the "scoops" it has ever had. He loses the money and the idea of the "scoop" is to conduct a lottery, the chief prize of which is a young husband, he himself to be the winner. There is a sweetheart in the cast, and an old maid who wins the lottery number. The question is—whether the tip on Wall street and borrows money from "Foxy" Peyton, proprietor of the paper, promising that if his tip fails, he will make good by giving the paper one of the "scoops" it has ever had. He loses the money and the idea of the "scoop" is to conduct a lottery, the chief prize of which is a young husband, he himself to be the winner. There is a sweetheart in the cast, and an old maid who wins the lottery number. The question is—whether the tip on Wall street and borrows money from "Foxy" Peyton, proprietor of the paper, promising that if his tip fails, he will make good by giving the paper one of the "scoops" it has ever had. He loses the money and the idea of the "scoop" is to conduct a lottery, the chief prize of which is a young husband, he himself to be the winner. There is a sweetheart in the cast, and an old maid who wins the lottery number. The question is—whether the tip on Wall street and borrows money from "Foxy" Peyton, proprietor of the paper, promising that if his tip fails, he will make good by giving the paper one of the "scoops" it has ever had. He loses the money and the idea of the "scoop" is to conduct a lottery, the chief prize of which is a young husband, he himself to be the winner. There is a sweetheart in the cast, and an old maid who wins the lottery number. The question is—whether the tip on Wall street and borrows money from "Foxy" Peyton, proprietor of the paper, promising that if his tip fails, he will make good by giving the paper one of the "scoops" it has ever had. He loses the money and the idea of the "scoop" is to conduct a lottery, the chief prize of which is a young husband, he himself to be the winner. There is a sweetheart in the cast, and an old maid who wins the lottery number. The question is—whether the tip on Wall street and borrows money from "Foxy" Peyton, proprietor of the paper, promising that if his tip fails, he will make good by giving the paper one of the "scoops" it has ever had. He loses the money and the idea of the "scoop" is to conduct a lottery, the chief prize of which is a young husband, he himself to be the winner. There is a sweetheart in the cast, and an old maid who wins the lottery number. The question is—whether the tip on Wall street and borrows money from "Foxy" Peyton, proprietor of the paper, promising that if his tip fails, he will make good by giving the paper one of the "scoops" it has ever had. He loses the money and the idea of the "scoop" is to conduct a lottery, the chief prize of which is a young husband, he himself to be the winner. There is a sweetheart in the cast, and an old maid who wins the lottery number. The question is—whether the tip on Wall street and borrows money from "Foxy" Peyton, proprietor of the paper, promising that if his tip fails, he will make good by giving the paper one of the "scoops" it has ever had. He loses the money and the idea of the "scoop" is to conduct a lottery, the chief prize of which is a young husband, he himself to be the winner. There is a sweetheart in the cast, and an old maid who wins the lottery number. The question is—whether the tip on Wall street and borrows money from "Foxy" Peyton, proprietor of the paper, promising that if his tip fails, he will make good by giving the paper one of the "scoops" it has ever had. He loses the money and the idea of the "scoop" is to conduct a lottery, the chief prize of which is a young husband, he himself to be the winner. There is a sweetheart in the cast, and an old maid who wins the lottery number. The question is—whether the tip on Wall street and borrows money from "Foxy" Peyton, proprietor of the paper, promising that if his tip fails, he will make good by giving the paper one of the "scoops" it has ever had. He loses the money and the idea of the "scoop" is to conduct a lottery, the chief prize of which is a young husband, he himself to be the winner. There is a sweetheart in the cast, and an old maid who wins the lottery number. The question is—whether the tip on Wall street and borrows money from "Foxy" Peyton, proprietor of the paper, promising that if his tip fails, he will make good by giving the paper one of the "scoops" it has ever had. He loses the money and the idea of the "scoop" is to conduct a lottery, the chief prize of which is a young husband, he himself to be the winner. There is a sweetheart in the cast, and an old maid who wins the lottery number. The question is—whether the tip on Wall street and borrows money from "Foxy" Peyton, proprietor of the paper, promising that if his tip fails, he will make good by giving the paper one of the "scoops" it has ever had. He loses the money and the idea of the "scoop" is to conduct a lottery, the chief prize of which is a young husband, he himself to be the winner. There is a sweetheart in the cast, and an old maid who wins the lottery number. The question is—whether the tip on Wall street and borrows money from "Foxy" Peyton, proprietor of the paper, promising that if his tip fails, he will make good by giving the paper one of the "scoops" it has ever had. He loses the money and the idea of the "scoop" is to conduct a lottery, the chief prize of which is a young husband, he himself to be the winner. There is a sweetheart in the cast, and an old maid who wins the lottery number. The question is—whether the tip on Wall street and borrows money from "Foxy" Peyton, proprietor of the paper, promising that if his tip fails, he will make good by giving the paper one of the "scoops" it has ever had. He loses the money and the idea of the "scoop" is to conduct a lottery, the chief prize of which is a young husband, he himself to be the winner. There is a sweetheart in the cast, and an old maid who wins the lottery number. The question is—whether the tip on Wall street and borrows money from "Foxy" Peyton, proprietor of the paper, promising that if his tip fails, he will make good by giving the paper one of the "scoops" it has ever had. He loses the money and the idea of the "scoop" is to conduct a lottery, the chief prize of which is a young husband, he himself to be the winner. There is a sweetheart in the cast, and an old maid who wins the lottery number. The question is—whether the tip on Wall street and borrows money from "Foxy" Peyton, proprietor of the paper, promising that if his tip fails, he will make good by giving the paper one of the "scoops" it has ever had. He loses the money and the idea of the "scoop" is to conduct a lottery, the chief prize of which is a young husband, he himself to be the winner. There is a sweetheart in the cast, and an old maid who wins the lottery number. The question is—whether the tip on Wall street and borrows money from "Foxy" Peyton, proprietor of the paper, promising that if his tip fails, he will make good by giving the paper one of the "scoops" it has ever had. He loses the money and the idea of the "scoop" is to conduct a lottery, the chief prize of which is a young husband, he himself to be the winner. There is a sweetheart in the cast, and an old maid who wins the lottery number. The question is—whether the tip on Wall street and borrows money from "Foxy" Peyton, proprietor of the paper, promising that if his tip fails, he will make good by giving the paper one of the "scoops" it has ever had. He loses the money and the idea of the "scoop" is to conduct a lottery, the chief prize of which is a young husband, he himself to be the winner. There is a sweetheart in the cast, and an old maid who wins the lottery number. The question is—whether the tip on Wall street and borrows money from "Foxy" Peyton, proprietor of the paper, promising that if his tip fails, he will make good by giving the paper one of the "scoops" it has ever had. He loses the money and the idea of the "scoop" is to conduct a lottery, the chief prize of which is a young husband, he himself to be the winner. There is a sweetheart in the cast, and an old maid who wins the lottery number. The question is—whether the tip on Wall street and borrows money from "Foxy" Peyton, proprietor of the paper, promising that if his tip fails, he will make good by giving the paper one of the "scoops" it has ever had. He loses the money and the idea of the "scoop" is to conduct a lottery, the chief prize of which is a young husband, he himself to be the winner. There is a sweetheart in the cast, and an old maid who wins the lottery number. The question is—whether the tip on Wall street and borrows money from "Foxy" Peyton, proprietor of the paper, promising that if his tip fails, he will make good by giving the paper one of the "scoops" it has ever had. He loses the money and the idea of the "scoop" is to conduct a lottery, the chief prize of which is a young husband, he himself to be the winner. There is a sweetheart in the cast, and an old maid who wins the lottery number. The question is—whether the tip on Wall street and borrows money from "Foxy" Peyton, proprietor of the paper, promising that if his tip fails, he will make good by giving the paper one of the "scoops" it has ever had. He loses the money and the idea of the "scoop" is to conduct a lottery, the chief prize of which is a young husband, he himself to be the winner. There is a sweetheart in the cast, and an old maid who wins the lottery number. The question is—whether the tip on Wall street and borrows money from "Foxy" Peyton, proprietor of the paper, promising that if his tip fails, he will make good by giving the paper one of the "scoops" it has ever had. He loses the money and the idea of the "scoop" is to conduct a lottery, the chief prize of which is a young husband, he himself to be the winner. There is a sweetheart in the cast, and an old maid who wins the lottery number. The question is—whether the tip on Wall street and borrows money from "Foxy" Peyton, proprietor of the paper, promising that if his tip fails, he will make good by giving the paper one of the "scoops" it has ever had. He loses the money and the idea of the "scoop" is to conduct a lottery, the chief prize of which is a young husband, he himself to be the winner. There is a sweetheart in the cast, and an old maid who wins the lottery number. The question is—whether the tip on Wall street and borrows money from "Foxy" Peyton, proprietor of the paper, promising that if his tip fails, he will make good by giving the paper one of the "scoops" it has ever had. He loses the money and the idea of the "scoop" is to conduct a lottery, the chief prize of which is a young husband, he himself to be the winner. There is a sweetheart in the cast, and an old maid who wins the lottery number. The question is—whether the tip on Wall street and borrows money from "Foxy" Peyton, proprietor of the paper, promising that if his tip fails, he will make good by giving the paper one of the "scoops" it has ever had. He loses the money and the idea of the "scoop" is to conduct a lottery, the chief prize of which is a young husband, he himself to be the winner. There is a sweetheart in the cast, and an old maid who wins the lottery number. The question is—whether the tip on Wall street and borrows money from "Foxy" Peyton, proprietor of the paper, promising that if his tip fails, he will make good by giving the paper one of the "scoops" it has ever had. He loses the money and the idea of the "scoop" is to conduct a lottery, the chief prize of which is a young husband, he himself to be the winner. There is a sweetheart in the cast, and an old maid who wins the lottery number. The question is—whether the tip on Wall street and borrows money from "Foxy" Peyton, proprietor of the paper, promising that if his tip fails, he will make good by giving the paper one of the "scoops" it has ever had. He loses the money and the idea of the "scoop" is to conduct a lottery, the chief prize of which is a young husband, he himself to be the winner. There is a sweetheart in the cast, and an old maid who wins the lottery number. The question is—whether the tip on Wall street and borrows money from "Foxy" Peyton, proprietor of the paper, promising that if his tip fails, he will make good by giving the paper one of the "scoops" it has ever had. He loses the money and the idea of the "scoop" is to conduct a lottery, the chief prize of which is a young husband, he himself to be the winner. There is a sweetheart in the cast, and an old maid who wins the lottery number. The question is—whether the tip on Wall street and borrows money from "Foxy" Peyton, proprietor of the paper, promising that if his tip fails, he will make good by giving the paper one of the "scoops" it has ever had. He loses the money and the idea of the "scoop" is to conduct a lottery, the chief prize of which is a young husband, he himself to be the winner. There is a sweetheart in the cast, and an old maid who wins the lottery number. The question is—whether the tip on Wall street and borrows money from "Foxy" Peyton, proprietor of the paper, promising that if his tip fails, he will make good by giving the paper one of the "scoops" it has ever had. He loses the money and the idea of the "scoop" is to conduct a lottery, the chief prize of which is a young husband, he himself to be the winner. There is a sweetheart in the cast, and an old maid who wins the lottery number. The question is—whether the tip on Wall street and borrows money from "Foxy" Peyton, proprietor of the paper, promising that if his tip fails, he will make good by giving the paper one of the "scoops" it has ever had. He loses the money and the idea of the "scoop" is to conduct a lottery, the chief prize of which is a young husband, he himself to be the winner. There is a sweetheart in the cast, and an old maid who wins the lottery number. The question is—whether the tip on Wall street and borrows money from "Foxy" Peyton, proprietor of the paper, promising that if his tip fails, he will make good by giving the paper one of the "scoops" it has ever had. He loses the money and the idea of the "scoop" is to conduct a lottery, the chief prize of which is a young husband, he himself to be the winner. There is a sweetheart in the cast, and an old maid who wins the lottery number. The question is—whether the tip on Wall street and borrows money from "Foxy" Peyton, proprietor of the paper, promising that if his tip fails, he will make good by giving the paper one of the "scoops" it has ever had. He loses the money and the idea of the "scoop" is to conduct a lottery, the chief prize of which is a young husband, he himself to be the winner. There is a sweetheart in the cast, and an old maid who wins the lottery number. The question is—whether the tip on Wall street and borrows money from "Foxy" Peyton, proprietor of the paper, promising that if his tip fails, he will make good by giving the paper one of the "scoops" it has ever had. He loses the money and the idea of the "scoop" is to conduct a lottery, the chief prize of which is a young husband, he himself to be the winner. There is a sweetheart in the cast, and an old maid who wins the lottery number. The question is—whether the tip on Wall street and borrows money from "Foxy" Peyton, proprietor of the paper, promising that if his tip fails, he will make good by giving the paper one of the "scoops" it has ever had. He loses the money and the idea of the "scoop" is to conduct a lottery, the chief prize of which is a young husband, he himself to be the winner. There is a sweetheart in the cast, and an old maid who wins the lottery number. The question is—whether the tip on Wall street and borrows money from "Foxy" Peyton, proprietor of the paper, promising that if his tip fails, he will make good by giving the paper one of the "scoops" it has ever had. He loses the money and the idea of the "scoop" is to conduct a lottery, the chief prize of which is a young husband, he himself to be the winner. There is a sweetheart in the cast, and an old maid who wins the lottery number. The question is—whether the tip on Wall street and borrows money from "Foxy" Peyton, proprietor of the paper, promising that if his tip fails, he will make good by giving the paper one of the "scoops" it has ever had. He loses the money and the idea of the "scoop" is to conduct a lottery, the chief prize of which is a young husband, he himself to be the winner. There is a sweetheart in the cast, and an old maid who wins the lottery number. The question is—whether the tip on Wall street and borrows money from "Foxy" Peyton, proprietor of the paper, promising that if his tip fails, he will make good by giving the paper one of the "scoops" it has ever had. He loses the money and the idea of the "scoop" is to conduct a lottery, the chief prize of which is a young husband, he himself to be the winner. There is a sweetheart in the cast, and an old maid who wins the lottery number. The question is—whether the tip on Wall street and borrows money from "Foxy" Peyton, proprietor of the paper, promising that if his tip fails, he will make good by giving the paper one of the "scoops" it has ever had. He loses the money and the idea of the "scoop" is to conduct a lottery, the chief prize of which is a young husband, he himself to be the winner. There is a sweetheart in the cast, and an old maid who wins the lottery number. The question is—whether the tip on Wall street and borrows money from "Foxy" Peyton, proprietor of the paper, promising that if his tip fails, he will make good by giving the paper one of the "scoops" it has ever had. He loses the money and the idea of the "scoop" is to conduct a lottery, the chief prize of which is a young husband, he himself to be the winner. There is a sweetheart in the cast, and an old maid who wins the lottery number. The question is—whether the tip on Wall street and borrows money from "Foxy" Peyton, proprietor of the paper, promising that if his tip fails, he will make good by giving the paper one of the "scoops" it has ever had. He loses the money and the idea of the "scoop" is to conduct a lottery, the chief prize of which is a young husband, he himself to be the winner. There is a sweetheart in the cast, and an old maid who wins the lottery number. The question is—whether the tip on Wall street and borrows money from "Foxy" Peyton, proprietor of the paper, promising that if his tip fails, he will make good by giving the paper one of the "scoops" it has ever had. He loses the money and the idea of the "scoop" is to conduct a lottery, the chief prize of which is a young husband, he himself to be the winner. There is a sweetheart in the cast, and an old maid who wins the lottery number. The question is—whether the tip on Wall street and borrows money from "Foxy" Peyton, proprietor of the paper, promising that if his tip fails, he will make good by giving the paper one of the "scoops" it has ever had. He loses the money and the idea of the "scoop" is to conduct a lottery, the chief prize of which is a young husband, he himself to be the winner. There is a sweetheart in the cast, and an old maid who wins the lottery number. The question is—whether the tip on Wall street and borrows money from "Foxy" Peyton, proprietor of the paper, promising that if his tip fails, he will make good by giving the paper one of the "scoops" it has ever had. He loses the money and the idea of the "scoop" is to conduct a lottery, the chief prize of which is a young husband, he himself to be the winner. There is a sweetheart in the cast, and an old maid who wins the lottery number. The question is—whether the tip on Wall street and borrows money from "Foxy" Peyton, proprietor of the paper, promising that if his tip fails, he will make good by giving the paper one of the "scoops" it has ever had. He loses the money and the idea of the "scoop" is to conduct a lottery, the chief prize of which is a young husband, he himself to be the winner. There is a sweetheart in the cast, and an old maid who wins the lottery number. The question is—whether the tip on Wall street and borrows money from "Foxy" Peyton, proprietor of the paper, promising that if his tip fails, he will make good by giving the paper one of the "scoops" it has ever had. He loses the money and the idea of the "scoop" is to conduct a lottery, the chief prize of which is a young husband, he himself to be the winner. There is a sweetheart in the cast, and an old maid who wins the lottery number. The question is—whether the tip on Wall street and borrows money from "Foxy" Peyton, proprietor of the paper, promising that if his tip fails, he will make good by giving the paper one of the "scoops" it has ever had. He loses the money and the idea of the "scoop" is to conduct a lottery, the chief prize of which is a young husband, he himself to be the winner. There is a sweetheart in the cast, and an old maid who wins the lottery number. The question is—whether the tip on Wall street and borrows money from "Foxy" Peyton, proprietor of the paper, promising that if his tip fails, he will make good by giving the paper one of the "scoops" it has ever had. He loses the money and the idea of the "scoop" is to conduct a lottery, the chief prize of which is a young husband, he himself to be the winner. There is a sweetheart in the cast, and an old maid who wins the lottery number. The question is—whether the tip on Wall street and borrows money from "Foxy" Peyton, proprietor of the paper, promising that if his tip fails, he will make good by giving the paper one of the "scoops" it has ever had. He loses the money and the idea of the "scoop" is to conduct a lottery, the chief prize of which is a young husband, he himself to be the winner. There is a sweetheart in the cast, and an old maid who wins the lottery number. The question is—whether the tip on Wall street and borrows money from "Foxy" Peyton, proprietor of the paper, promising that if his tip fails, he will make good by giving the paper one of the "scoops" it has ever had. He loses the money and the idea of the "scoop" is to conduct a lottery, the chief prize of which is a young husband, he himself to be the winner. There is a sweetheart in the cast, and an old maid who wins the lottery number. The question is—whether the tip on Wall street and borrows money from "Foxy" Peyton, proprietor of the paper, promising that if his tip fails, he will make good by giving the paper one of the "scoops" it has ever had. He loses the money and the idea of the "scoop" is to conduct a lottery, the chief prize of which is a young husband, he himself to be the winner. There is a sweetheart in the cast, and an old maid who wins the lottery number. The question is—whether the tip on Wall street and borrows money from "Foxy" Peyton, proprietor of the paper, promising that if his tip fails, he will make good by giving the paper one of the "scoops" it has ever had. He loses the money and the idea of the "scoop" is to conduct a lottery, the chief prize of which is a young husband, he himself to be the winner. There is a sweetheart in the cast, and an old maid who wins the lottery number. The question is—whether the tip on Wall street and borrows money from "Foxy" Peyton, proprietor of the paper, promising that if his tip fails, he will make good by giving the paper one of the "scoops" it has ever had. He loses the money and the idea of the "scoop" is to conduct a lottery, the chief prize of which is a young husband, he himself to be the winner. There is a sweetheart in the cast, and an old maid who wins the lottery number. The question is—whether the tip on Wall street and borrows money from "Foxy" Peyton, proprietor of the paper, promising that if his tip fails, he will make good by giving the paper one of the "scoops" it has ever had. He loses the money and the idea of the "scoop" is to conduct a lottery, the chief prize of which is a young husband, he himself to be the winner. There is a sweetheart in the cast, and an old maid who wins the lottery number. The question is—whether the tip on Wall street and borrows money from "Foxy" Peyton, proprietor of the paper, promising that if his tip fails, he will make good by giving the paper one of the "scoops" it has ever had. He loses the money and the idea of the "scoop" is to conduct a lottery, the chief prize of which is a young husband, he himself to be the winner. There is a sweetheart in the cast, and an old maid who wins the lottery number. The question is—whether the tip on Wall street and borrows money from "Foxy" Peyton, proprietor of the paper, promising that if his tip fails, he will make good by giving the paper one of the "scoops" it has ever had. He loses the money and the idea of the "scoop" is to conduct a lottery, the chief prize of which is a young husband, he himself to be the winner. There is a sweetheart in the cast, and an old maid who wins the lottery number. The question is—whether the tip on Wall street and borrows money from "Foxy" Peyton, proprietor of the paper, promising that if his tip fails, he will make good by giving the paper one of the "scoops" it has ever had. He loses the money and the idea of the "scoop" is to conduct a lottery, the chief prize of which is a young husband, he himself to be the winner. There is a sweetheart in the cast, and an old maid who wins the lottery number. The question is—whether the tip on Wall street and borrows money from "Foxy" Peyton, proprietor of the paper, promising that if his tip fails, he will make good by giving the paper one of the "scoops" it has ever had. He loses the money and the idea of the "scoop" is to conduct a lottery, the chief prize of which is a young husband, he himself to be the winner. There is a sweetheart in the cast, and an old maid who wins the lottery number. The question is—whether the tip on Wall street and borrows money from "Foxy" Peyton, proprietor of the paper, promising that if his tip fails, he will make good by giving the paper one of the "scoops" it has ever had. He loses the money and the idea of the "scoop" is to conduct a lottery, the chief prize of which is a young husband, he himself to be the winner. There is a sweetheart in the cast, and an old maid who wins the lottery number. The question is—whether the tip on Wall street and borrows money from "Foxy" Peyton, proprietor of the paper, promising that if his tip fails, he will make good by giving the paper one of the "scoops" it has ever had. He loses the money and the idea of the "scoop" is to conduct a lottery, the chief prize of which is a young husband, he himself to be the winner. There is a sweetheart in the cast, and an old maid who wins the lottery number. The question is—whether the tip on Wall street and borrows money from "Foxy" Peyton, proprietor of the paper, promising that if his tip fails, he will make good by giving the paper one of the "scoops" it has ever had. He loses the money and the idea of the "scoop" is to conduct a lottery, the chief prize of which is a young husband, he himself to be the winner. There is a sweetheart in the cast, and an old maid who wins the lottery number. The question is—whether the tip on Wall street and borrows money from "Foxy" Peyton, proprietor of the paper, promising that if his tip fails, he will make good by giving the paper one of the "scoops" it has ever had. He loses the money and the idea of the "scoop" is to conduct a lottery, the chief prize of which is a young husband, he himself to be the winner. There is a sweetheart in the cast, and an old maid who wins the lottery number. The question is—whether the tip on Wall street and borrows money from "Foxy" Peyton, proprietor of the paper, promising that if his tip fails, he will make good by giving the paper one of the "scoops" it has ever had. He loses the money and the idea of the "scoop" is to conduct a lottery, the chief prize of which is a young husband, he himself to be the winner. There is a sweetheart in the cast, and an old maid who wins the lottery number. The question is—whether the tip on Wall street and borrows money from "Foxy" Peyton, proprietor of the paper, promising that if his tip fails, he will make good by giving the paper one of the "scoops" it has ever had. He loses the money and the idea of the "scoop" is to conduct a lottery, the chief prize of which is a young husband, he himself to be the winner. There is a sweetheart in the cast, and an old maid who wins the lottery number. The question is—whether the tip on Wall street and borrows money from "Foxy" Peyton, proprietor of the paper, promising that if his tip fails, he will make good by giving the paper one of the "scoops" it has ever had. He loses the money and the idea of the "scoop" is to conduct a lottery, the chief prize of which is a young husband, he himself to be the winner. There is a sweetheart in the cast, and an old maid who wins the lottery number. The question is—whether the tip on Wall street and borrows money from "Foxy